SPECIAL THANKS TO: Robert Hetherington, Richard Hansen, Dean Leonard, Sandy Sloan, Sally Slusher, Robin Rost, and everyone else I forgot.

VERY SPECIAL THANKS to Dea Henrich for making me read this play.

It is hard to understand the true notion of spectator, there and not there, ignored and yet needed. The actor's work is never for an audience, yet always is for one. The onlooker is a partner who must be forgotten and still constantly kept in mind: a gesture is statement, expression, communication and a private manifestation of loneliness--it is always what Artaud calls a signal through the flames--yet this implies a sharing experience, once contact is made.
